

Miss Hood and Mr. Reid Married at Carrollton

The marriage of Miss Lucie Lofton Hood, of Carrollton, to John Inzer Reid, Jr., of Montevallo, was solemnized at 11 a.m. Wednesday, December 28, at a home ceremony.

An improvised altar of evergreens flanked by tall baskets of white chrysanthemums was placed in the living room and while Mrs. T. B. Nettles played appropriate music, June Reid, in blue velvet, and Miss Mary Hood, in rose velvet, lighted the tall white tapers on the altar.

Miss Carolyn Self, small niece of the bride, in pale taffeta, sang.

The bride and bridegroom entering together, were met at the altar by the Rev. O. M. Cockerhan, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, who pronounced the nuptial vows.

The bride wore for her marriage a dress of teal blue with hat and accessories of cranberry shades and had a corsage of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley.

The bridal couple and other guests were entertained at a breakfast, the coffee table having a bowl of pink roses as a center motif was flanked by pink tapers in crystal holders.

Mr. and Mrs. Reid left later for their wedding trip to New Orleans and early in January they will be at home in Montevallo.

Mrs. Reid is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Hood, of Aliceville, who were early settlers in Pickens County coming from North Carolina. She was educated at Alabama College and Columbia University and for the past several years she has been on the faculty of Alabama College, and has made her home with her aunt, Mrs. W. B. Lofton, and uncle, the late Dr. Lofton.

Mr. Reid's parents are Dr. and Mrs. J. I. Reid, of Montevallo. He was educated at Gulfport Military Academy and the University of Alabama, where he was affiliated with the Delta Chi Fraternity.

Self and Ray and Carolyn Self, of Auburn; Mrs. Mary Tandy and David Tandy and Mrs. John D. Laws, of Columbus, Miss.; Jack Floyd, of Russellville; and Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Gilbert, Montevallo.

Kent Takes Over Maywood Dairy

Kent's Dairy of Siluria has bought out the business of the Maywood Dairy from W. L. Gravlee, and is now serving the former customers of Maywood in Montevallo. The change was effective December 1.

In a statement given The Times for publication this week Mr. Kent said:

"As we assume the business of Maywood Dairy in the Montevallo territory and begin serving those customers with our products, we wish to say that we appreciate your business, and will do our very best to give you a service and a product that will be satisfactory in every respect. We realize that in making the changes necessary to the transfer of the business, there is likely to be some errors made. If such has happened, we hope the customers will call it to our attention, and we will gladly make proper adjustments.

"We are in position to give our milk customers absolute assurance that our products are of the highest standards. Our cows are thoroughly tested at regular intervals, and our entire dairy plant has periodic inspection by health authorities of Shelby and Jefferson Counties, and of the State Health Department. We give you every safeguard to insure the cleanliness and sanitation of all our products and service."

Kent's Dairy is not new in this community. They have been serving this territory daily for several years. "With the increased facilities we have through addition of the Maywood business, we believe we are in position to give our Montevallo customers the best service they have ever had," said Mr. Kent, "and we appreciate the opportunity to do so."

Boys Attempt To Wreck Train

Vincent, Ala. — Deputy Solicitor P. O. Luck said Monday two Shelby County youths who were trailed by fingerprints on a broken mustard jar had admitted attempting to wreck two trains near Vincent in December. Luck said the youths were identified as James Denny, 19, and John Pinson Carter, 21, both of Vincent.

The mustard jar, the official said, was found at a pump house near the tracks and was part of loot taken from the Vincent school. Luck said the boys also admitted breaking into the school house.

A freight train passed over the dismantled track, from which angle bars and spikes had been removed, on December 13, Luck said, and the conductor stopped the train when he noticed the rails were loose. A passenger train behind the freight was halted. The youths were trailed to Texas and back to Alabama, the solicitor reported.

Luck said investigation is still in progress into derailing of a passenger train at McCombs, Ala., Dec. 19, 1936, when 52 passengers were injured. Railroad agents reported angle bars and spikes had been removed from the track.

Joseph Szigeti To Appear On Concert Program Here

Students and faculty of Alabama College, especially the die-hards and conservatives of music who have ignored the existence of jazz, are interested these days in the news that two of the world's greatest serious musicians — the composer Bela Bartok and the violinist Joseph Szigeti — are joining forces with Benny Goodman, the king of swing, in an unique experiment which fuses the straight and swing modes of music. On Monday evening, January 9, at Carnegie Hall, the world premiere of a Concerto for Violin and Clarinet by Bela Bartok will take place, with Szigeti and Goodman playing the solo parts.

The Montevallo angle is that Szigeti will appear here in concert in Palmer Auditorium the evening of January 13 as a presentation of the Concert and Lecture Series.

The Bartok - Szigeti - Goodman combination was the happy if unexpected result of a visit Benny Goodman paid the violinist last summer at the latter's home on the Riviera. Szigeti wrote to Bartok about Goodman, suggesting he compose a work for clarinet and violin and asserted that anything that could be played on the clarinet Benny Goodman could play ("and how!" he added), and that the instrument, in his hands, was capable of a far greater range in the top register than it is usually credited with.

Bartok, a lifelong friend of Szigeti's, for whom much of his music was especially written, no sooner received the letter than he set to work, without even bothering to answer. On September 19, in London.

Mr. Ziolkowski In Piano Recital

Whether it is the fascination of flying fingers over the keyboard, their knowledge of the pianist's skill in piano technique, or their love of music masterfully played, the people of Montevallo look forward to Mieczyslaw Ziolkowski's annual piano recital in Palmer Hall Friday evening, January 6, at 8:15.

Among the outstanding numbers to be played by Mr. Ziolkowski are Fantasy and Fugue in G Minor by Bach-Liszt, Fantasy in C major by Schumann, and Spanish Rhapsody by Liszt. If incomes increase and prices remain about the same, farm families may be able to spend more and also save more in 1939 than in 1938.

Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York said before the American Farm Bureau Federation convention in New Orleans recently that industry needs stability, labor needs security, and agriculture needs parity. Can anyone else tell the trouble so clearly, so concisely, and so absolutely truthfully?

Experiments at the Wiregrass Experiment Station show that the addition of 150 pounds of nitrogen to corn will mean an increase of around 14 bushels per acre, states J. P. Wilson, superintendent of the Headland substation of the Alabama Experiment Station at Auburn.

Farmers have wondered about the low acre yield of corn in Alabama. Tests show that the old practice of interplanting with summer legumes, like velvet beans, soybeans, cowpeas, and in many cases peanuts, always reduce the yield of corn. However, the question is whether the farmer wants the legumes for increased cotton next year and the feed these legumes offer or whether he wants increased yields of corn. Some farmers prefer the advantages of the legumes over increased yields of corn.

Postmaster Bob Reid says he will go to Montgomery about Sunday to witness the organization and "take off" of the new legislature. "I think it will look somewhat different this time compared with four years ago when I went to Montgomery as a new member of the law-making body," he said.

For economical hog production experiments have shown that two litters of pigs per year in November and May are best. These experiments show that to utilize the forage crops all the year pigs should be farrowed in these months, preferably the first week or so of the month.

PLAN FEED FOR SOW AND PIGS

Auburn, Ala.—J. P. Wilson, superintendent of the Wiregrass substation of the Alabama Experiment Station, stated this week in a conference at Auburn that Alabama farmers can plan the feed requirements of each sow and her two litters of pigs per year. By planning this feed needed by sow and pigs they can not only grow hogs more economically but can sell them in better condition.

Mr. Wilson said experiments at Headland show that a sow with two litters a year (12 pigs) would require: Not over 10 bushels of corn and 150 pounds of supplement, one acre of green oats, one acre of permanent pasture, one acre of soybeans, one acre of Spanish peanuts, and 3½ to 5 acres of runner peanuts. This forage crop ration saves the expense of commercial feed almost entirely.

PANTRY IS WORTH $137.06 TO HER

Talladega, Ala.—Mrs. J. W. Surret, Talladega, Rt. 2, has a new pressure cooker and a good canning plan. She says:

"I started canning by putting up a few quarts each day. I soon found my food budget self growing. I have canned 57 quarts of tomatoes, 80 quarts of beans, 35 quarts of kraut, 7 quarts of soup mixture, 4 quarts of okra, 47 quarts of peaches, 41 quarts of berries, 24 of pears, 20 of apples, 57 of pickles, 27 of meats, 40 of juices, 15 of preserves, 8 of jams, and 8 quarts of jellies. I have a year-round garden, chickens, milk, butter, eggs, meat, and syrup."

Mrs. Surret estimates that the 458 quarts meant a saving of $137.06 during the year.

"Reverend Hurst"

(Revised and increased)

By the Rev. Henry Marshall Hurst

There is a certain fellow
Who makes me want to burst,
He never fails to hail me
With "Hello, Reverend Hurst!"

If two things make bad syntax,
This one is the first,
When some guy introduces me
With "This is Reverend Hurst."

As just a common "Mister,"
I'd acknowledge him who durst;
But I would like to punch the man
Who calls me "Reverend Hurst."

Some frisky sister canters up
With painted lips all pursed,
And then proceeds to knock me cold
With "How-do, Reverend Hurst?"

I don't object to "Doctor,"
(Though I am not so versed),
But twist the snoot of that galoot
Who calls me "Reverend Hurst."

I like the term of "Brother,"
But save me from the worst,
When either saint or sinner
Says "Hello, Reverend Hurst!"

I don't object to "Pastor,"
And "Parson" is not the worst,
But let me slap the vacant chap
Who calls me "Reverend Hurst."

O, why will people never learn,
And why should I be cursed,
Left and right, both day and night,
Addressed as "Reverend Hurst!"

"A PRIVATE AGENCY FOR THE PUBLIC GOOD"

What It Means To You

"A Private Agency for the Public Good."

That is not merely a catchy phrase conceived by our Advertising Department. It reflects the belief of many Alabama citizens who have expressed that belief—thinking citizens not easily misled by baseless criticisms and accusations. Perhaps you are one of those citizens. If you are, you already know why Alabama Power Company is "A Private Agency for the Public Good."

You know how, in the face of discouragements and at times what seemed to be insurmountable difficulties, Alabama Power Company has built for Alabama an electrical grid of power plants and transmission lines which supply service which you know to be dependable, and which you buy at rates much lower than the national average.

You know that Alabama Power Company was one of the two electric utility companies which pioneered the extension of electric service to rural communities as far back as 1923.

You know that for fifteen years Alabama Power Company has been active and successful in its effort toward persuading expanding industry to locate its plants in Alabama, so that there might be greater opportunities for employment of Alabama people.

You know that Alabama Power Company encourages its employees to take active part in many worthwhile civic affairs.

You know that of the more than three million dollars paid by Alabama Power Company for taxes, 2¼ millions are paid annually within the State of Alabama. Perhaps you can't visualize just how much money that is. Perhaps you don't know that it is enough to pay—

About 1½ times the State's share of expense of operating Alabama's institutions of higher learning, or

Nearly 1½ times the cost of the State's extension, vocational and miscellaneous education work, or

More than 1/5 of the State's share of elementary and high school expense, or

Nearly 1/5 of State highway expense, or

More than 1/2 of the expense of State charities, or

More than 6 times the amount spent on health and sanitation by the State, or

Almost 4 times the amount necessary for debt service on the Alabama State Docks, or

About 3/4 of the amount needed to pay interest on the State's bonds.

If you are one of those Alabama citizens who consider Alabama Power Company "A Private Agency for the Public Good," we are grateful for your trust.

If you hold an opposite opinion, that is your right, but we sincerely feel that, because you are a fair-minded person, you, too, will come to consider us "A Private Agency for the Public Good" when time reveals many of the falsities of the political propaganda against us.

If incomes increase and prices remain about the same, farm families may be able to spend more and also save more in 1939 than in 1938.

Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York said before the American Farm Bureau Federation convention in New Orleans recently that industry needs stability, labor needs security, and agriculture needs parity. Can anyone else tell the trouble so clearly, so concisely, and so absolutely truthfully?

Experiments at the Wiregrass Experiment Station show that the addition of 150 pounds of nitrogen to corn will mean an increase of around 14 bushels per acre, states J. P. Wilson, superintendent of the Headland substation of the Alabama Experiment Station at Auburn.

Farmers have wondered about the low acre yield of corn in Alabama. Tests show that the old practice of interplanting with summer legumes, like velvet beans, soybeans, cowpeas, and in many cases peanuts, always reduce the yield of corn. However, the question is whether the farmer wants the legumes for increased cotton next year and the feed these legumes offer or whether he wants increased yields of corn. Some farmers prefer the advantages of the legumes over increased yields of corn.

Postmaster Bob Reid says he will go to Montgomery about Sunday to witness the organization and "take off" of the new legislature. "I think it will look somewhat different this time compared with four years ago when I went to Montgomery as a new member of the law-making body," he said.

For economical hog production experiments have shown that two litters of pigs per year in November and May are best. These experiments show that to utilize the forage crops all the year pigs should be farrowed in these months, preferably the first week or so of the month.

PLAN FEED FOR SOW AND PIGS

Auburn, Ala.—J. P. Wilson, superintendent of the Wiregrass substation of the Alabama Experiment Station, stated this week in a conference at Auburn that Alabama farmers can plan the feed requirements of each sow and her two litters of pigs per year. By planning this feed needed by sow and pigs they can not only grow hogs more economically but can sell them in better condition.

Mr. Wilson said experiments at Headland show that a sow with two litters a year (12 pigs) would require: Not over 10 bushels of corn and 150 pounds of supplement, one acre of green oats, one acre of permanent pasture, one acre of soybeans, one acre of Spanish peanuts, and 3½ to 5 acres of runner peanuts. This forage crop ration saves the expense of commercial feed almost entirely.

PANTRY IS WORTH $137.06 TO HER

Talladega, Ala.—Mrs. J. W. Surrett, Talladega, Rt. 2, has a new pressure cooker and a good canning plan. She says:

"I started canning by putting up a few quarts each day. I soon found my food budget self growing. I have canned 57 quarts of tomatoes, 80 quarts of beans, 35 quarts of kraut, 7 quarts of soup mixture, 4 quarts of okra, 47 quarts of peaches, 41 quarts of berries, 24 of pears, 20 of apples, 57 of pickles, 27 of meats, 40 of juices, 15 of preserves, 8 of jams, and 8 quarts of jellies. I have a year-round garden, chickens, milk, butter, eggs, meat, and syrup."

Mrs. Surrett estimates that the 458 quarts meant a saving of $137.06 during the year.

UNIQUE GIFT

Conservation Commissioner I. T. Quinn was the recipient of one of the most unusual Christmas gifts reported on Capitol Hill this season. It was in the form of one acre of land in Arizona, and the donor was Tom Beck, editor of Collier's Magazine, and a good friend of the commissioner. According to the attached blueprint and photograph, the acre is "16 miles from running water and 20 miles from Yuma." Commissioner Quinn also received greetings from persons in every state in the union and several foreign countries.

"Reverend Hurst"

(Revised and increased)

By the Rev. Henry Marshall Hurst

There is a certain fellow
Who makes me want to burst,
He never fails to hail me
With "Hello, Reverend Hurst!"

If two things make bad syntax,
This one is the first,
When some guy introduces me
With "This is Reverend Hurst."

As just a common "Mister,"
I'd acknowledge him who durst;
But I would like to punch the man
Who calls me "Reverend Hurst."

Some frisky sister canters up
With painted lips all pursed,
And then proceeds to knock me cold
With "How-do, Reverend Hurst?"

I don't object to "Doctor,"
(Though I am not so versed),
But twist the snoot of that galoot
Who calls me "Reverend Hurst."

I like the term of "Brother,"
But save me from the worst,
When either saint or sinner
Says "Hello, Reverend Hurst!"

I don't object to "Pastor,"
And "Parson" is not the worst,
But let me slap the vacant chap
Who calls me "Reverend Hurst."

O, why will people never learn,
And why should I be cursed,
Left and right, both day and night,
Addressed as "Reverend Hurst!"

"A PRIVATE AGENCY FOR THE PUBLIC GOOD"

What It Means To You

"A Private Agency for the Public Good."

That is not merely a catchy phrase conceived by our Advertising Department. It reflects the belief of many Alabama citizens who have expressed that belief—thinking citizens not easily misled by baseless criticisms and accusations. Perhaps you are one of those citizens. If you are, you already know why Alabama Power Company is "A Private Agency for the Public Good."

You know how, in the face of discouragements and at times what seemed to be insurmountable difficulties, Alabama Power Company has built for Alabama an electrical grid of power plants and transmission lines which supply service which you know to be dependable, and which you buy at rates much lower than the national average.

You know that Alabama Power Company was one of the two electric utility companies which pioneered the extension of electric service to rural communities as far back as 1923.

You know that for fifteen years Alabama Power Company has been active and successful in its effort toward persuading expanding industry to locate its plants in Alabama, so that there might be greater opportunities for employment of Alabama people.

You know that Alabama Power Company encourages its employees to take active part in many worthwhile civic affairs.

You know that of the more than three million dollars paid by Alabama Power Company for taxes, 2¼ millions are paid annually within the State of Alabama. Perhaps you can't visualize just how much money that is. Perhaps you don't know that it is enough to pay—

About 1½ times the State's share of expense of operating Alabama's institutions of higher learning, or

Nearly 1½ times the cost of the State's extension, vocational and miscellaneous education work, or

More than 1/5 of the State's share of elementary and high school expense, or

Nearly 1/5 of State highway expense, or

More than 1/2 of the expense of State charities, or

More than 6 times the amount spent on health and sanitation by the State, or

Almost 4 times the amount necessary for debt service on the Alabama State Docks, or

About 3/4 of the amount needed to pay interest on the State's bonds.

If you are one of those Alabama citizens who consider Alabama Power Company "A Private Agency for the Public Good," we are grateful for your trust.

If you hold an opposite opinion, that is your right, but we sincerely feel that, because you are a fair-minded person, you, too, will come to consider us "A Private Agency for the Public Good" when time reveals many of the falsities of the political propaganda against us.

B. P. W. Membership Increased Last Year

The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs announces a total membership of 55,587 as of December 1, 1938—2,654 more than it had at that time last year.

Upon examining its records on December 1, the local branch of Business and Professional Women was found to have twenty-seven members, eighteen of whom are on the staff of Alabama College and nine who are engaged in various activities in the community. There is a wide range of occupations and considering that Montevallo is a college town this is a good representation of townspeople. However, this is the time of year for new resolutions and the Montevallo group hereby resolves to recruit new members both from businesses in town and from the college faculty.

IMPROVEMENT IN COTTON CONTINUES

Auburn, Ala.—A prediction that continued interest and work of farmers in cotton improvement will, within another four years, place Alabama at the top in quality of lint produced, was made here today by J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist.

Cotton improvement work, begun several years ago in the state, is now at a critical stage, according to Mr. Lowery. Foundation stock needs replenishing in many localities and many additional communities need improved variety seed. To grow good varieties of cotton next spring will require that farmers make every effort to get good seed between now and planting time.

"Some farmers have been discouraged by the price differential between short and long staples," Mr. Lowery stated. "However, a determined effort by farmers, extension service workers, vocational teachers, and business groups inter-

BOY SCOUTS

Scout Cabin

The Boy Scout Cabin is coming on in fine order. The walls are almost to their desired height and logs for the rest are rapidly being prepared. The members of our troop have been very cooperative as a whole. There are only a few who have not done more than their share.

As soon as the cabin itself is finished we shall begin to furnish it. We hope to make most of the furnishings ourselves. The two cedar trees that were cut off the lot will be made into lumber for this purpose. Another problem facing us after the cabin is finished is filling the pits around it so we can play "Capture the Flag," and other games after Scout meeting.

On Duty

The Scouts are on duty at the temporary school, the Methodist Church, to assist the children in crossing the streets safely. We are happy to report that we are getting the cooperation of the drivers, and we wish to thank each and every one of them.

ested in cotton, can make it possible to reach the top within a four to five year period.

Cotton improvement work in Alabama has become more established and the production of a better staple cotton has become a generally followed farm practice. The fact that 61.5 per cent of the crop in 1938 averaged 15/16 inches and longer indicates the progress that has been made, when this percentage is compared to the 6.1 per cent in 1930.

The summer of 1938 was favorable to development of good staple. However, Mr. Lowery points out, the crop has averaged around 36 per cent of the 15/16 inch or longer fiber during recent years as compared with 5 to 6 per cent in the earlier years before the improvement work was begun.

Do You Know?

Alabama has 33 counties without a single public library in their boundaries?

Alabama stands in the eighth place from the bottom in the United States in public library service?

Alabama is one of the four states in the union which has no agency for public library extension service, and it is the only one in the South?

Alabama has 2,846,248 citizens, two-thirds of whom are without any type of public library service?

Alabama in 1937 spent 7 cents per capita. The average for the United States is now 35 cents per capita, or five times that of Alabama. The standard set by the American Library Association calls for $1.00 per capita?

A Library Extension Agency is the logical method for extending library service to the entire state, and it is a vital factor in public education. It is provided by legislative enactment, and the Governor appoints the five members who direct it, all of whom serve without salary. They employ a trained and experienced librarian to serve as secretary, and such other assistants as may be necessary to aid in establishing and organizing libraries and in circulating books within the state to residents of communities where no libraries exist.

A State Library Extension Agency would stimulate interest and assist in establishing public libraries in towns and counties without them; help libraries already established to render wider service; develop county libraries to reach the most isolated person in the county; and to place a deposit of books in every community; make rural life more desirable; stimulate home education; and administer state or Federal aid.

The president's Advisory Committee on Education in its report has recommended that grants be made to further public library service in several states. This money, according to the report, must be administered by some definite agency designated by each state for the purpose. If Congress makes the appropriation, Alabama will want to receive her share.

Until there is an active Library Extension Agency, with legislative authority and an assured financial appropriation, library service in Alabama will lag.

Individually and as a federated club we are in favor of establishing such an agency. We ask that all citizens of Montevallo interested in this vital civic cause write to your State Senator and Representative, requesting that they vote for the bill to create an Alabama Library Extension Agency when it is presented at the next meeting of the legislature. In this way you can assist library development in the state.—Montevallo Study Club, Mrs. E. P. Hood, Civic Chairman.

ANNUAL REPORT READY

Tracing the progress of wildlife conservation in Alabama for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1938, the annual report of the Department of Conservation of Game, Fish and Seafoods was ready for distribution on January 2nd.

Among other things, the report shows that over 3,000,000 young fish were planted in the waters of Alabama during the year; that nearly 4,000 bob white quail were distributed to the various county conservation clubs and councils for restocking depleted areas; that nearly 2,500,000 pounds of shrimp and 55,254 barrels of oysters were harvested from Alabama coastal waters. It also reveals that 105,767 persons bought resident hunting and fishing licenses in the state that year. The bulk of the report is written in narrative style with many illustrations, and it is believed that it will appeal to all sportsmen-conservationists as interesting reading matter. Copies may be obtained by writing the Conservation Department, Montgomery.

For the country as a whole both farm and non-farm income should be somewhat higher in 1939 than in 1938.

The ignominious little water flea, or daphnia magna, threatens to replace the white mouse as an experimental animal, it will be revealed in a science exhibit at the 1939 California World's Fair.

Mr. Clyde J. Davis of Montgomery spent Christmas with friends in Montevallo.

Goodman had suggested, perhaps with recording requirements in mind, that it would only play for six minutes and Bartok apologized a little for the additional length. He wrote: "Generally the salesman delivers less than he ought to. There are exceptions, however, as for example if you order a suit for a two-year-old baby and an adult's suit is sent instead—when the generosity is not particularly welcome!"

The first movement is a "Verbunkos." This is Hungarian for the type of song used for recruiting soldiers in the 17th century; a swaggering, swashbuckling tune. The second movement is marked "Sebes," meaning "swift." Throughout the clarinet and violin are placed on an equal footing, the former having a cadenza in the first section, the latter in the second.

Mr. Szigeti is soloist this season with the Cleveland and Philadelphia Orchestras, and gives recitals in cities other than Montevallo, including Toronto, Northampton, Oklahoma City, Omaha, Ithaca, Nashville, Quebec, Providence, and New London.

CONCERT AT COURTHOUSE SUNDAY, JAN. 8

A band and male octet will render a program at the Shelby County Courthouse Sunday, January 8, at 2 p.m.

The band and male octet is outstanding in their presentation of Negro arrangements and Negro spirituals. They have traveled extensively rendering the program. The band is made up of the college orchestra, the "Bama State Collegians," and Revellers, with additional musicians to make up the band for such a program.

Each colored citizen in the vicinity, in making 1939 resolutions, should include such educational programs. The two schools that are sponsoring the program are the Calera Junior High School and the County Training School, the only high school for Negroes in the county. Professor J. Campbell has done and is doing much for the Negro boy and girl in training them to be better citizens. There are two major projects under way at the school which are at a standstill because of the lack of funds.

The white friends are expected to turn out to hear some old Negro spirituals and band music under the direction of Professor Joe Brooks, and a short talk by Professor H. C. Trenholm.

TUBERCULOSIS COSTING ALABAMA $32,000 A DAY

Tuberculosis cases were reported to the State Department of Public Health during 1937 at the average rate of a new case approximately every three hours, the department announced today, explaining that reported cases totaled 3,021 for the year.

A study was conducted some time ago of a group of tuberculous employees of a large New York manufacturing firm and this revealed that these cases cost the patients, their friends and relatives, and society generally approximately $4,000 each. On this basis, it was pointed out, presumably new cases of tuberculosis are costing the people of Alabama approximately $32,000 a day.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Butler have moved into the Fulford house on Highland Avenue.
